PACKET 1: Declaratory Relief -- Ordinance Invalid (17-41-402 Preemption)

Legal Basis: Utah Code 17-41-402(6) (now 17-81-402) -- CIM state preemption
Total Documents: 1922

> To prevail on the preemption claim, Tree Farm must prove that the Salt Lake County ordinance directly conflicts with Utah Code 17-41-402(6), which prohibits any county from adopting an ordinance that restricts critical infrastructure materials operations. The CRITICAL documents below establish three essential points: (1) the ordinance expressly prohibits 'sand, gravel and/or rock aggregate' extraction -- the exact materials protected by the CIM statute; (2) the County received repeated, explicit warnings that the ordinance violated state law before it was adopted; and (3) the County's own District Attorney deliberately evaded the preemption question rather than addressing it on the merits, supporting an inference of bad faith.

Similar to Exhibit 22, the language undermines the plaintiff's position by framing the elimination of mineral extraction as a community protection effort rather than as an illegal act. Recommended Use: Use cautiously as a summary judgment exhibit on the invalidity question. Anticipate that opposing counsel may cite this document to argue the county was acting in the community's interest.*

However, it undermines the plaintiff's position because the language reflects support for the county's action, framing the removal of mineral extraction from conditional uses as a community-protective measure rather than acknowledging it as a legal violation. Recommended Use: Use cautiously as a summary judgment exhibit on the invalidity question. The county deliberately ignored the CIM statute despite formal notification, and the dismissive response from the County Attorney supports the bad faith claim.*

The District Attorney never addressed the merits of the preemption argument, which is exactly what the plaintiff alleges. Recommended Use: Use as a lead exhibit to show District Attorney awareness of the preemption issue. This document demonstrates three critical points: (1) the county was on notice of the prohibition in Utah Code 17-41-402(6); (2) the District Attorney chose to evade rather than address the merits of the preemption argument; and (3) the District Attorney mischaracterized the ordinance by claiming it does not reference critical infrastructure materials when the ordinance expressly prohibits sand, gravel, and rock aggregate, supporting the bad faith claim.*

Preemption: "sand, gravel and/or rock aggregate"; Ordinance Action: "mineral extraction and processing", "mineral extraction", "conditional use"; Statute refs: 19.12.030 SUPPORTS -- The ordinance language itself proves a facial violation of the CIM statute by explicitly targeting "sand, gravel and/or rock aggregate," which is the exact definition of critical infrastructure materials under state law. The ordinance does not merely regulate these materials incidentally; it expressly prohibits them by name. Recommended Use: Use as a core exhibit. Present a side-by-side comparison of the ordinance language with the statutory CIM definition to show facial invalidity under Utah Code 17-41-402(6). This direct textual overlap is among the strongest evidence of preemption.

PACKET 2: Permanent Injunction -- Stop County Enforcement

Legal Basis: Injunctive relief -- preemption + due process violations
Total Documents: 1694

> To obtain a permanent injunction, Tree Farm must demonstrate: (1) the ordinance is void as preempted by state law (see Packet 1); (2) the County has taken or threatened enforcement actions under the invalid ordinance; (3) Tree Farm faces irreparable harm without injunctive relief because its mining rights cannot be adequately compensated through damages alone; and (4) the balance of equities favors injunctive relief. The documents below focus on enforcement actions, predetermined outcomes, and due process violations that demonstrate the ongoing threat of harm.

I cannot imagine a worse treatment of our mountains than tearing into them and"* UNDERMINES -- This document contains an internal admission that the ordinance may be illegal or void. Similar to Exhibit 22, the language undermines the plaintiff's position by framing the elimination of mineral extraction as a community protection effort rather than as an illegal act. Recommended Use: Use cautiously as a summary judgment exhibit on the invalidity question. Anticipate that opposing counsel may cite this document to argue the county was acting in the community's interest.*

I cannot imagine a worse treatment of our mountains than tearing into them and"* UNDERMINES -- This document contains an internal admission that the ordinance may be illegal or void. However, it undermines the plaintiff's position because the language reflects support for the county's action, framing the removal of mineral extraction from conditional uses as a community-protective measure rather than acknowledging it as a legal violation. Recommended Use: Use cautiously as a summary judgment exhibit on the invalidity question. Be prepared to address that this document frames the ordinance as a protective measure, which the opposing side may use to argue legitimate governmental purpose.*

PACKET 3: Declaratory Relief -- TF Has Vested Mining Use

Legal Basis: Utah Code 17-41-501 to -503 (now 17-81-401 to -403)
Total Documents: 804

Under Utah Code 17-41-501 through -503, Tree Farm must prove it holds a vested mining use that the County cannot extinguish through the ordinance. The evidence below establishes: (1) Tree Farm filed required notices of intention with the Division of Oil, Gas, and Mining (DOGM); (2) Tree Farm obtained necessary state mining permits; (3) mining operations were established before the challenged ordinance was adopted; and (4) the vested mining use runs with the land and cannot be terminated except by a written declaration of abandonment by the owner.

Its presence in the county's own records proves that the county had direct access to and was aware of the state statute that explicitly prohibits counties from adopting ordinances restricting critical infrastructure materials operations. Recommended Use: Use as the foundational exhibit to establish the preemption standard. Present alongside the text of the challenged ordinance to demonstrate that the ordinance directly violates the plain language of the state statute.*

It is Tree Farm's formal legal declaration asserting over 90 years of vested mining rights under Utah Code sections 17-41-501 through 17-41-503, citing continuous mining operations dating back to the 1890s, the DOGM Large Mine Permit issued in 1996, and uninterrupted operations throughout that period. Recommended Use: Use as a primary exhibit for Claim 3. This document proves that a formal recorded declaration of vested mining use was filed. It cites Portland Cement operations dating from the 1890s, references the DOGM Large Mine Permit approved in 1996, and establishes the chain of title through predecessor entities to Tree Farm LLC.*

Prior Use: "legal nonconforming"; Investment: "mining operations"; County Knew: "continue to be a conditional use", "conditional use" SUPPORTS -- This is a County Council public hearing presentation dated April 5, 2022, in which county staff explicitly stated that existing mining operations would be classified as legal nonconforming uses. This constitutes a direct admission by the county itself that existing mining rights predated and survived the zoning changes. Recommended Use: Use as a county admission exhibit for Claim 3. County staff informed the Council that existing approved and operational mineral extraction would qualify as legal nonconforming uses. This establishes that the county was fully aware of, and publicly acknowledged, mining operations that predated the zoning changes.

Prior Use: "legal nonconforming"; Investment: "mining operations"; County Knew: "continue to be a conditional use", "conditional use" SUPPORTS -- This is an additional copy of the County Council public hearing presentation from April 5, 2022, which explicitly states that existing mining operations would be classified as legal nonconforming uses. It serves as a direct county admission of existing mining rights. Recommended Use: Use as a county admission exhibit for Claim 3. This is a duplicate of the council presentation confirming that the county acknowledged existing mining as legal nonconforming uses, reinforcing the consistency of the county's own position on this issue.

SLCo013000 | Score: 50 | Elements: Prior Use, Investment, County Knew

Prior Use: "legal nonconforming"; Investment: "mining operations"; County Knew: "continue to be a conditional use", "conditional use" SUPPORTS -- This is a Mountainous Planning District Commission presentation dated February 3, 2022, that acknowledges existing mining operations as legal nonconforming uses. This Planning Commission admission directly supports the vested mining rights claim. Recommended Use: Use as a Planning Commission admission exhibit for Claim 3. The Mountainous Planning District Planning Commission presentation explicitly states that existing mining operations would be classified as legal nonconforming uses. This presentation preceded the county ordinance change and demonstrates institutional recognition of vested mining rights.

PACKET 4: (Alternative) Regulatory Taking

Legal Basis: U.S. Const. Amend. V; Utah Const. Art. I Sec.22; Penn Central / Lucas tests
Total Documents: 1209

> Under the Penn Central and Lucas regulatory taking tests, Tree Farm must demonstrate that the County's ordinance constitutes a taking requiring just compensation. The CRITICAL documents below establish: (1) Economic Impact -- the ordinance eliminates all economically viable mining use of Tree Farm's mineral rights and property; (2) Interference with Investment-Backed Expectations -- Tree Farm made substantial investments in mining permits and operations before the ordinance; and (3) Character of the Government Action -- the ordinance was targeted legislation designed to 'shut down' a specific operator, with community members and officials explicitly strategizing to destroy Tree Farm's mining rights.

Similar to Exhibit 22, the language undermines the plaintiff's position by framing the elimination of mineral extraction as a community protection effort rather than as an illegal act. Recommended Use: Use cautiously as a summary judgment exhibit on the invalidity question. Anticipate that opposing counsel may cite this document to argue the county was acting in the community's interest.*

However, it undermines the plaintiff's position because the language reflects support for the county's action, framing the removal of mineral extraction from conditional uses as a community-protective measure rather than acknowledging it as a legal violation. Recommended Use: Use cautiously as a summary judgment exhibit on the invalidity question. Be prepared to address that this document frames the ordinance as a protective measure, which the opposing side may use to argue legitimate governmental purpose.*

Recent Notices of Intention to begin mining operations with the"* SUPPORTS -- This is a County Council public hearing presentation dated April 5, 2022, in which county staff explicitly stated that existing mining operations would be classified as legal nonconforming uses. This constitutes a direct admission by the county itself that existing mining rights predated and survived the zoning changes. Recommended Use: Use as a county admission exhibit for Claim 3. County staff informed the Council that existing approved and operational mineral extraction would qualify as legal nonconforming uses. This establishes that the county was fully aware of, and publicly acknowledged, mining operations that predated the zoning changes.*

It serves as a direct county admission of existing mining rights. Recommended Use: Use as a county admission exhibit for Claim 3. This is a duplicate of the council presentation confirming that the county acknowledged existing mining as legal nonconforming uses, reinforcing the consistency of the county's own position on this issue.*

It is Tree Farm's formal legal declaration asserting over 90 years of vested mining rights under Utah Code sections 17-41-501 through 17-41-503, citing continuous mining operations dating back to the 1890s, the DOGM Large Mine Permit issued in 1996, and uninterrupted operations throughout that period. Recommended Use: Use as a primary exhibit for Claim 3. This document proves that a formal recorded declaration of vested mining use was filed. It cites Portland Cement operations dating from the 1890s, references the DOGM Large Mine Permit approved in 1996, and establishes the chain of title through predecessor entities to Tree Farm LLC.*

Its presence in the county's own records proves that the county had direct access to and was aware of the state statute that explicitly prohibits counties from adopting ordinances restricting critical infrastructure materials operations. Recommended Use: Use as the foundational exhibit to establish the preemption standard. Present alongside the text of the challenged ordinance to demonstrate that the ordinance directly violates the plain language of the state statute.

PACKET 5: County Counterclaim -- 17-41-402(6)(1) Does Not Preempt Ordinance

Legal Basis: County's defense that 17-41-402(6)(1) does not preempt the ordinance
Total Documents: 2175

> COUNTY'S POSITION: The County contends that Utah Code 17-41-402(6) does not preempt the ordinance. The County's strongest arguments are: (1) the ordinance does not reference 'critical infrastructure materials' by statutory name; (2) the County acted within its police power to protect public health, safety, and environmental quality; (3) Tree Farm never obtained a conditional use permit and has no vested rights; and (4) significant public opposition to mining supports the County's legitimate governmental interest. Your attorney should review these documents to prepare for the County's defense.

These fugitive dust emissions threaten the health, safety, and general welfare of"* UNDERMINES -- This document contains an internal admission that the ordinance may be illegal or void. Similar to Exhibit 22, the language undermines the plaintiff's position by framing the elimination of mineral extraction as a community protection effort rather than as an illegal act. Recommended Use: Use cautiously as a summary judgment exhibit on the invalidity question. Anticipate that opposing counsel may cite this document to argue the county was acting in the community's interest.*

These fugitive dust emissions threaten the health, safety, and general welfare of"* SUPPORTS -- The ordinance language itself proves a facial violation of the CIM statute by explicitly targeting "sand, gravel and/or rock aggregate," which matches the statutory definition of critical infrastructure materials. Recommended Use: Use as a core exhibit. Present a side-by-side comparison of the ordinance language with the statutory CIM definition to demonstrate facial invalidity under Utah Code 17-41-402(6).*

These fugitive dust emissions threaten the health, safety, and general welfare of"* UNDERMINES -- This document contains an internal admission that the ordinance may be illegal or void. However, it undermines the plaintiff's position because the language reflects support for the county's action, framing the removal of mineral extraction from conditional uses as a community-protective measure rather than acknowledging it as a legal violation. Recommended Use: Use cautiously as a summary judgment exhibit on the invalidity question. Be prepared to address that this document frames the ordinance as a protective measure, which the opposing side may use to argue legitimate governmental purpose.*

Environmental Health: "air quality"; Public Opposition: "public comment", "public hearing", "quality of life"; Statute refs: 17-41-402 SUPPORTS -- The County Council was placed on formal notice of the ordinance's illegality on the very day of its adoption. Bateman's efforts to engage with the county on this issue yielded only dismissive emails from County Attorney Zach Shaw, demonstrating that the county was not merely unaware but actively chose to disregard the warnings. Recommended Use: Use at trial and in the motion for summary judgment to establish that the county had actual notice of the ordinance's illegality at the time of adoption. The county deliberately ignored the CIM statute despite formal notification, and the dismissive response from the County Attorney supports the bad faith claim.

County Defense Preemption: "do not include any reference to critical infrastructure", "amendments do not include", "not conflict with utah code"; Public Opposition: "public comment", "public hearing"; Statute refs: 17-41-406 SUPPORTS -- This is a letter from the District Attorney to the Ombudsman that concedes the CIM preemption issue exists under Utah Code 17-41-402(6) but deliberately avoids addressing the fact that the ordinance expressly prohibits sand, gravel, and rock aggregate -- the materials that fall squarely within the statutory definition of critical infrastructure materials. The District Attorney never addressed the merits of the preemption argument, which is exactly what the plaintiff alleges. Recommended Use: Use as a lead exhibit to show District Attorney awareness of the preemption issue. This document demonstrates three critical points: (1) the county was on notice of the prohibition in Utah Code 17-41-402(6); (2) the District Attorney chose to evade rather than address the merits of the preemption argument; and (3) the District Attorney mischaracterized the ordinance by claiming it does not reference critical infrastructure materials when the ordinance expressly prohibits sand, gravel, and rock aggregate, supporting the bad faith claim.
